

Yankees Blanked by Tigers, 2 to 0—Giants Lose to Reds, 3 to 2, and Drub to Second Place

Hits by Duncan and Fonseca In 8th Inning Beat McGrawmen

Pilette's Great Pitching Completely Stops New Yorkers and Renders Null and Void Some Fancy Flirting by Bob Shawkey; Poor Fielding Is Costly

Don't call him "Herman Pilette," that youngster from the Coast," but give him the cognomen of which he is deserving, "Herman, the magician." The lanky right-hander on the Detroit payroll stepped forth on the Polo Ground yesterday before twenty-eight thousand fans and shut out the disconsolate Yankees by the score of 2 to 0, holding the once-famed Murderers' Row in the palm of his sinewy hand and limiting the whole troupe of Yanks to a doleful pair of hits.

Herman, the Magician

It was a comeback effort, too. This same Pilette person appeared on the mound in the first game of the series and gained an easy 5 to 1 decision against the hired men of the Twin Colonels. He fired the second barrel yesterday and made an even cleaner hit. Long Bob Meusel nicked him for a line single to center on his appearance at the plate in the first inning, but the next safe blow was garnered in the eighth, when Whitey Witt beat out a bunt.

And that was all. Just two small spots on a magnificent pitching record. He gave one base on balls, and struck out two men. Not a Yankee hireling reached the midway station in safety, which is by way of emphasizing the blighting effect of the hooks and sinkers of the young man from Portland, Ore. The Hugmen waved their heavy-lidded eyes at him, but all to no purpose. They were battling for exercise and "running for Sweeney."

Pilette in a Hurry
By Cobb told his youthful hurrier before the game to hurry things along, as the Tigers had to make a train for the West immediately after the contest. Pilette certainly hurried things. He hustled the Yanks back to the dugout almost as rapidly as they advanced to the plate in spite of the fact that "Not so fast, young feller. Not so fast," emitted by Miller Huggins in his agony.

Having given this measure of credit to the man who came out of the West, it might be stated that Bob Shawkey twirled quite a game himself until he was removed for a pinch hitter in the eighth. It is true that the Tigers picked him for nine hits during this period, but he should never have been scored upon. The death dealing triple that accounted for the two empty runs in the sixth might have been the third out of that inning had Babe Ruth turned his back to the ball and run for it when he first saw it sailing his way. The Sultan of Swat himself was lost, and the Tigers gave a last triumphant bowl and departed to Jungtown well satisfied with an even break in this metropolitan.

The only break in the scoreless innings came in the sixth, and it was a break against the Hugmen. Deacon Scott let Harry Heilmann's grasser slip out of his glove, and the one slugger was safe on a bunt. On the hit and run, Cutshaw was thrown out by Scotty, but Nellmann made the midway station. Emory Rigney slammed the door that barred off Shawkey's shin for a scratch single on which Heilmann took third.

The Bambo Heilmann
It was up to Larry Woodall, the Tiger catcher, who has been doing some particularly damaging hitting against the Yanks in this series. Woodall hit a fast ball and drove it high up and far back into the domain where the King of Swat parks his fairy form in right field. First the Babe edged back easily then he backed up, laid a backswing, and then he stepped, and raised a few feet, and then he cut down and the ball sailed over his head to the barrier for a triple, scoring Heilmann and Rigney with two highly essential tallies from the Detroit point of view.

Huggins called on the reserves in the eighth in an attempt to stem the tide of defeat. The gaunt form of J. Franklin Baker was seen in the dugout to supply the missing link in the defense. The Trappe mauler picked his favorite bludgeon, but it was rusty from lack of use and he stood dully at the plate while the ball whizzed past him. Hooper Hits Heavily
And White Sox Win 5-2
BOSTON, July 22.—By defeating Boston, 5 to 2, today Chicago broke even on this four-game series. Courtney kept Boston's hits well scattered. Hooper's hitting accounted in the main for three runs.

In the eighth, with two out, Dugan singled but neglected to touch second on J. Collins's apparent double to right field, Dugan being the side retired. Hooper, Collins, and the side retired.

New York Firemen Win Final Game From Chicago, 13-6

The New York Fire Department baseball nine finally defeated the Chicago team at Ebbetts Field yesterday, and the victory was earned before the biggest crowd of the series. Despite the fact that Chicago clinched the series by winning the first two games, and were rewarded for their loyalty with a 13-6 victory.

The New Yorkers used a simple but most effective method in winning the ball game—they lunched their hits so well in one inning that they scored nine runs and practically won right then and there. The big tally came in the second inning when the New Yorkers knocked Zwick off the box and dashed in squadrons across the plate.

Zwick, it will be remembered, was tendered a somewhat similar reception on Friday, but luck was not on his side. Yesterday he was not removed until the damage had been done, and Pearson, his successor, could not distinguish the New York configuration.

There was plenty of excitement, what with all the big rallies, from the time that Murray Hillbert, president of the Board of Aldermen, threw out the first ball until the last out had been recorded almost three hours later. The Chicagoans kept battering away at the lead, and in such a game no one could afford to relax.

They needed only seven runs to tie. They never did tie the score, however, mainly through the good work of the elders. Haug, the pitcher, at first for the Cubs, induced in much fancy fielding.

Wheat led off for Brooklyn in the second inning with a double over third and got a single in right. Schmidt advanced on High's sacrifice and Ward's out and scored on Deberry's single. Vance's double to left put Deberry on third, and the score was 2-0.

Osborne went to the hill and Mitchell singled to center, scoring Myers and Neis and putting Wheat on third. Mitchell was caught trying for second, and High's sacrifice sent Wheat home.

Vance's troubles in the fifth inning came as suddenly as the rain, which caused Wheat to slip. With two out, Mitchell filled the bases on Neis's single to center, and free tickets for Hollocher and Terry. Ray Grimes got his fluke triple, which Wheat missed by falling, and it scored Heathcote, Hollocher and Terry. Barber walked, Hack Miller dropped a single into left, scoring R. Grimes and sending Barber to third, scoring Barber.

Chicago had a lead of two runs when Myers opened the eighth inning with a single to center. Tom Griffith batted for Bert Griffith and sent Myers to third on a single in right. Neis ran for Griffith. Wheat walked, filling the bases and Cheever disappeared.

Three for the Robins

Rally in Eighth Inning Gives Robins Victory Over Cubs, 7-6

CHICAGO, July 22.—Dame Nature handed the Cubs three runs to-day in the fifth inning, but the Brooklyn Robins persisted and finally won, despite the dame by 7 to 6. This gave them an even break in the first four games of the series, which will close with one game to-morrow. Then the Robins fly homeward to open in Brooklyn on Tuesday.

Nature got in the game to-day by spreading so much rain before play started that there came near being no contest. In the fifth inning with two out the Cubs filled the bases on a single and two passes off Darryl Vance. Ray Grimes knocked a long fly to the mound in front of the left field bleachers. Wheat almost had his hands on the ball when he fell full length. The fly escaped the fielder and went for a triple, driving in three runs that tied the score.

Grimes and another runner scored in the fifth, and the count was 5 to 3 in favor of the Cubs. The Robins won out in the eighth, when they filled the bases against Vito Marcione, who was out in time. Yesterday he was not removed until the damage had been done, and Mitchell's single and High's sacrifice fly drove in all three runs.

Darryl Vance went the entire route for the Robins, and his troubles were due to weakness. He allowed eight hits and issued seven bases on balls. Vance has won all three of his starts against the Cubs this year. His victory to-day was the third game won by Brooklyn in fifteen played on this tour.

Jones Is Batted Out
Percy Jones was the original Cub pitcher to-day, but Percy lasted less than two innings. He was knocked out in the second for three runs. Cheever relieved Jones and lasted until the Dodgers rally in the eighth. Cheever was the losing pitcher. A thrilling catch by Hi Myers off O'Farrell in the seventh inning robbed O'Farrell of a hit that would have gone for four bases. Ray Schmidt, at first for the Robins, and Marty Krug, at third for the Cubs, induced in much fancy fielding.

Wheat led off for Brooklyn in the second inning with a double over third and got a single in right. Schmidt advanced on High's sacrifice and Ward's out and scored on Deberry's single. Vance's double to left put Deberry on third, and the score was 2-0.
